Operations of Cabral Against Bacz-Varying Successes-Death of Narciso Nunez-The

Paper Money Question. HAVANA, Dec. 22, 1870. From St. Thomas we have the following concerning affairs in St. Domingo:—

Cabral, having determined to commence operations on Azua before the month of December, tried tions on Azua before the month of December, tried to feel the enemy, and on the 17th of October he sent 200 men from San Juan de la Guana, under command of Orgando, ordering him to explore the road from Los Rios to Tubano. This order was obeyed, and, on the 18th, they attacked the troops of Bacz stationed at Tubano Atter three hours of steady firing the last named forces retired in disorder towards Azua, leaving their dead and wounded, among the former the general commanding them, Narcise Nunez, whose corpse was taken and buried by the soldiers of Orgando. These remained in possession of Tubano till the 22d, on which date, on account of further instructions, they returned to San Juan, taking with them their prisoners, many families and a large number of cattle.

On account of this occurrence General Ramirez Brez, with reinforcements sent to him immediately by the government, organized a column in Azua

Cabral, hearing of this, again sent General Orgando, with 800 men, who attacked the encampment on the 4th, taking it, making a large number of prisoners and taking a large amount of armament.

Cabral was only awaiting the falling of the rivers to march on in person in combination with forces from Neibu. The dissatisfaction of General Gomez, Vice President of the republic, is generally known. Bacz has resolved to consider him elected for two years and has ordered new elections. The candidate is the newly made General Caceres, a new figure, who will wound a great many susceptibilities.

The paper money question is the order of the day, Yanacio Gonzalez has returned from the United States with $500,000, which will be issued to circulate, but will be received with general displessure,

United States Steamer Yanti: Ashere—Re-ports of the Revolutionary Movements. HAVANA, Dec. 29, 1870. Advices from St. Domingo to December 20 contain the following news:— General Cabrai was in the neighborhood of San Juan with 800 half starved men engaged in spread-ing false reports of the death of General Baez.

The stories sent via St. Thomas and Puerto Plata announcing revolutionary movements are mere in-

The government of St. Domingo accepts its notes at the Custom House at seventy per cent discount, but a law had been promulgated that duties shall in future be paid in gold.

American provisions were plentiful.

The United States steamer Yantic, returning from her trip to assist in the laying of the Aspinwall cable, ran ashore at the entrance of the harbor of St. Domingo with a full head of steam on. It would be necessary to discharge her armament and coal to get her affoat.

Colonel O'Sullivan had arrived from France, accompanied by an Englishman, for the purpose of making an examination of the copper beds in St. Domingo.

The Hornet and Her Pursuers—Movements of Cubans.
NASSAU, N. P., Dec. 19, 1870.
Since my telegram of this date I have learned that the Hornet ran away from both ner pursuers and succeeded in taking coal from one of the small islands in this vicinity, while the Bazan was anxiously looking for her on the opposite side. The Cubans here are jubliant, while at the same time they are maintaining an unusual reticence. It is understood that Jordan is on board, and also Colonel Ryan. The Hornet has been so altered and armed as to be more than a match for the gunboats which are guarding the Spanish coast, and inough a contest will be avoided, if possible, no fears are entertained if it becomes necessary. She is very fast, and can easily distance anything in the Spanish service within the West India waters.

Occasional arrivals of Cubans from the island take place here, and, though their leaving is hardly corroborative of their words, they all agree in saying that the Cuban cause never looked brighter, and that the Spanish troops are accomplishing nothing in suppressing the insurrection, though they have commenced the devastation and decopulation of the country by destroying all the houses and crops, by killing the men and compelling the women and children to come within the Spanish lines. The general course of the Spaniards towards them has excited a bitterness of hatred I never before witnessed, and it is evident that, askie from external interference, the war can only be closed by the expulsion of the Spaniards or externination of the Cubans. that the Hornet ran away from both her pursuers

The Renomination of Grant by Acclamation.

Characteristic Interview with Governor James M. Ashley-The "Great Impeacher" on the Presidential Field-His Views About Grant, Chase, Hendricks, Logan, Bishop Simpson, &o, gan, Bishop Simpson, &c,

[From the Chicago Republican, Dec, 27.]

Among the many "rotations in office" which President Grant has recently deemed it wise to make few are more noteworthy than that of governor Ashley, of Montana, who was superseded last summer by General Potts. "Noteworthy," not because of the importance of the office, but because of the prominent part Mr. Ashley had taken in the organization and direction of the republican party and the high standing he had silways occupied in its ranks. This gentieman is now in Chicago, on his way east, and believing that he might have some important information to companicate to the public we sent a reporter to the Tremont yesterday to interview him. The following is the result of a short conference:—

REFORTER—Well, Governor, I see that you have turned lecturer. The newspapers say you are going to locater, but they do not agree on the subject some of them say you are to talk of your experience in Congress.

Mr. Ashley gave his head a negative shake.

REFORTER—Usels say you are to discuss the question of emigration as affecting the Western Territories.

Mr. Ashley—Well, I guess that's nearer the thing.

NATIONAL POLITICS.

In 1864.
REPORTER—Think so?
Mr. ASHLEY—Dead sure.

In 1864.

REPORTER—Think so?

Mr. ASHLEY—Dead sure. No use talking about it. [And then, with a shake of his massive front, "ileil—heil-heil"]

REPORTER—Do you think he's working for it?

Mr. ASHLEY—Working! Biess your soul, he lives for it. He never thinks of anything else.

REPORTER—And you think he'll make it, against all the others?

Mr. ASHLEY—I don't know of any others in the field. There's Trumbull; what's Horace White trying to do with him?

REPORTER—Make him President, I suppose.

Mr. ASHLEY—He'll have a hard time of it. Trumbull is not the man for President. He's to d—d cold. Besides, he couldn't beat Grant in the Convention, nor any place else.

REPORTER—Will Grant be re-elected?

Mr. ASHLEY—Don't know about that. It depends on the democrats. If they act wisely they can beat him. But you generally count on them to play the fool. If they think they are going to win they are sure to put up some candidate who can't be elected. REPORTER—Most anybody would win against Grant just now. Hendricks would beat him all to pleces.

Mr. ASHLEY—You needn't talk about Hendricks pieces.

Mr. Ashley—You needn't talk about Hendricks as "most anybody." He's a mighty big man, I tell as "most anybody." He's a mighty big man, I tell you.

REFORTER—How about Pendleton?
Mr. ASHLEY—Oh, he's played out.

REFORTER—He has the Presidency on the brain as bad as Chase ever had.

Air. ASHLEY—Yes, worse, I guess.

The incidental mention of Mr. Chase's name brought to the recollection of our reporter the fact that he was in the presence of a great admirer and fast friend of the Uhisf Justice, and the conversation was quickly diverted to a new and interesting channel.

REFORTER—Is Chase as badly used up as the news-

Mr. Ashley—No; except by a violent attack of cholera.

Reporter—Well, so you think he can be kept up and moving for the next race?

Mr. Ashley—Of course he can. Put on a first rate vice President with him and the people will be satisfied. He'll last till the 4th of March, 1873, any-Reporter—on me menutes had managed it right they could have nominated him in '68.

Mr. Ashley—Yes; but Chase has always been unfortunate in his management. The worst men in the country and the peorest politicians have always against his wish, but he couldry him. This, too, always against his wish, but he couldry him this, too, always against he wish, but he couldry him this, too, always against he wish, but he couldry him his, too, always against he wish, but he couldry him the has been very sinucky in getting into bad min, lie has hadn't been so he'd have been President long ago.

With a very little exercise of discretion he would have been nominated by the New York Convention.

THE ELECTION OF 1888.

REPORTER—But if nominated would he have been elected?

THE ELECTION OF 1888.

REPORTER—But if nominated would he have been elected?

MR. ASHLEY—Yes; certainly.
REPORTER—Don't know about that. The people were insane about Grant, and were determined to elect him.

MR. ASHLEY—Not by a d——n sight. A change of two and one-eightn per cent of the vote of Indiana and Pennsylvania, and three per cent of the vote of Onlo would have beaten him, even with that old stick, Seymour.

REPORTER—Were you for him?

Mr. ASHLEY—I opposed his nomination, but I voted for him. I was for Wade or Colfax, or anybody sgainst him. I'd have been for Chase, but the impeachment had killed him off with the republicans, and I saw there was no chance for him.

REPORTER—How did Grant come to remove you?

Did you say anything agains: him or work against him?

Mr. ASHLEY (laughing heartily)—I don't know why the devil he got after me, unless it was for a speech I made at a banquet given to the retiring members of Congress the might he sent in the nominations for his Cabinet. I felt mad about it, and said everything I could lay my tongue to. Here was a man elected by the republican party making up his Cabinet without consulting a single representative man of that party. I thought it a great outrage in representative government, and I said so that hight. In my speech at the banquet I said we were "dumb in the presence of a dummy." And I guess that wasn't the worst I said either, for I was mad as hell.

REPORTER—Were there any other speeches like fait?

Mr. ASHLEY—Yes. None of them were quite as bitter as mine; but they were all pretty sharp.

hat?
Mr. Asuley—Yes. None of them were quite as bitter as mine; but they were all pretty sharp, I think. think.

REFORTER—It was a private banquet; and how did Grant hear of your speech?

Mr. ASHLEY—Oh, he had his lacqueys all over Washington, and they ran to him and told him all about it. They put me in the papers as naving made that speech at 0maha, on my way to Montana; but I never made any speech there at all. Just after I made the speech, that night, General Buck-land, who had heard it, tapped me on the shoulder and said:—"Well, Jim, you've upset your little tin bucket this time." Meaning that I had spoiled my chances.

REPORTER-Did you ask Grant for the appoint-

REPORTER—Did you ask Grant for the appointment?

Mr. ASHLEY—No. I never called on him after his nomination until the day before I left for Montana, when I called to say that I hoped he'd hear a good account of my stewardship.

A WORD ABOUT LOGAN.

REPORTER—Well, you had good backers when he attempted to remove you.

Mr. ASHLEY—Oh, yes, Bishop Simpson stood by me, and called on Grant in my behalf.

REPORTER—Why, are you a Methodistical politician too?

Mr. ASHLEY—Oh, yes; I've always belonged to that Church. I swear a little; that's the only thing against my good standing.

REPORTER—Did you know Logan had joined the Church, too?

Church, too?
Mr. Ashley—Great God! (Much laughter by Mr. Ashley.)
FUTURE PROSPECTS.

Ashiev.)

FUTURE PROSPECTS.

Concerning the political future we found Mr. Ashiev in a state of uncertainty, except as to Grant's nomination. He believed, too, that Grant would make himself very strong by securing the vote of the entire South.

REFORER—Do you mean at the election?

Mr. ASHIEV—'ves.

REFORERER—But some of the Southern States have gone democratic. REPORTER—But some or the southern state have gone democratic.

Mr. ASHLET—Yes, I know they have. But he'll fix that. You'll see some fun about that time. In conclusion, Mr. Ashley reiterated his faith in Chase; hoped the reports of his rapidly failing heaith would be contradicted, and stated that he was going East to see him and have a talk with him. He evidently regards the Chief Justice as the coming 1921.

ANOTHER KNICKERBOCKER GONE.

Mr. Isaac Freyer, an old Knickerbocker, mem-ber of the St. Nicholas Society, Mercantile Library Association and other old time institutions of the city, left his home, 230 West Thirty-sixth street, city, left his horne, 239 West Thirty-sixth street, yesterday morning, apparently in usual health, and proceeded to the edice of the Mesars, Kingsland, Broad street, for whom he was book-keeper and conddennal manager. Subsequently Mr. Freyer had some purchases to make in Washington Market, and while there was taken suddenly ill, and, falling to the floor, expired in a few moments afterwards. Mr. Freyer, who was sevenly years of age and a nature of Albany, had as extensive circle of acquaintances and was universally respected. Some years ago Mr. Freyer was superintendent of the St. Nicholas Rotel, the duttes of which he discharged to the satisfaction of everybody concerned.
